Presentation

The II International Congress on the History of Prison and Punitive Institutions is organized by the Group for the Study of History of Prison and Punitive Institutions. The main theme of the conference, the shift “From disciplinary controls to securitarian controls”, aims at continuing the topics and concepts developed at the first Congress, held in Ciudad Real (Spain) in 2013.

The purpose of the Congress is to provide an occasion for collective and rigorous discussion, a framework in which participants from different fields can share their latest research on prison and punitive institutions, both from an historical perspective and in relation to the increasing restriction of rights and guarantees observed worldwide since the beginning of the 21st century. A space, therefore, in which historical approaches are central, but one that is also open to multidisciplinary perspectives that help in understanding the places and institutions of punishment, and their evolution, in the broader context of the social, political and economic relations in which they are integrated. This multidisciplinary perspective is encouraged by the composition of the organizing and scientific committees, made up of researchers with a background in different social sciences and disciplines, such as History, Sociology, Anthropology and Law.

Structure of the programme

The final structure of the programme will be announced in a second circular after the process of reception and approval of the proposals has finished. Until then, sessions and panels will be organized on the following basis:

1. Chronological: Initially, to submit the proposals, researchers should indicate in which historical period they frame their research and contribution. To this end, the organizing committee proposes four major periods: Middle Ages / Modern Age / Contemporary History / 21st Century.
2. Thematic: Subsequently, based on the proposals that are accepted, the organizing committee will structure the program distributing the proposals in sessions and panels that are thematically or chronologically coherent (Autumn 2018).
